 honest system of expenditures.

Meeting a Challenge

There are several things that a business can do when a new form of competition begins to cut into its sphere of activity. It can yell about the cruelty of the fates, if it likes; it can keep plugging along as it always has, hoping for better times; or it can spend a lot of money and energy in making the service that it offers a good deal better than it was before, so as to get some of its lost customers back.

This sort of thing happens to every industrial concern, no one time or another. An extremely interesting case in point is to be noticed in the recent action of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad in ordering nearly 100 new passenger cars of a radically improved type for service in place of the old-fashioned day coaches.

These cars approach the ordinary Pullman in luxury and comfort. Each passenger gets an upholstered arm-chair to himself. There are smoking and washroom compartments for men and women, just as on Pullman cars. The cars have roller bearings to make them ride more easily. They have seats for only 45 passengers, in place of the 68 to 80 seats in the ordinary day coach.

The railroad is going to use these on certain trains in place of the day coaches, offering them to the traveling public at no increase in fare. It is assumed that other railroads will take up the same idea, and that cars of this type, during the next few years, will come to replace the old-fashioned coach to an ever-increasing extent.

Here is a fine example of an intelligent way to meet competition.

The railroad passenger business has been hard hit in the past decade by the competition of the automobile. Not only have many prospective passengers been lured away, but many have done their traveling in their own cars, because it is pleasanter and often cheaper.

This is a situation that can be met in only one way. By offering more comforts than before, the railroads can lure back many of their lost passengers. The action of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad in ordering these new cars in undoubtedly an indication of the way the railroads generally are going to do it. They are going to try to make it more pleasant to go by train than by auto, instead of less.

A Philosopher Explains

PROF. EINSTEIN is evidently a psychologist as well as a material scientist. He analyzes the public reaction to himself dispassionately, as follows:

"It is true that I am popular among people who understand nothing about my work, then it is just luck. But I can understand this interest."

"We are living in a highly materialistic age, and the whole world is seeking objects and personalities it can worship. And man of standing in public life can suddenly become the object of worship of the masses."

"Spoken like a philosopher! And it is reassuring to humanity that so great a philosopher recognizes such a thing as luck in life—though he doesn't place any bets."

What mobs we are, after all, in our thinking! And what noble mobs! There are many heroes, each with "his public." The biggest hero has the biggest public to worship him. We worship varied types—almost any type, so it is represented by the best in his line"—a John T. Sullivan, a Roosevelt, a Lindbergh, a Capone, a Bobby Jones, an Einstein.

"This is our current religion. We shall always admire the wise, the skillful, the strong, the great human. But as for worship—some day we may worship God again.—Paragould Daily Press."

It's Not Finished Yet

THERE is not much that can be said about the California supreme court's second refusal to recommend a pardon for Warren K. Billings; not much that can be said, for the simple reason that practically everything has already been said, over and over again.

Billings and his comrade in the 1916 bombing case, Tom McVeigh, are thus due to lie in prison for a while longer yet.
 No one need assume that the last has been heard of this famous case. It is not a closed issue. A tremendous number of people are firmly convinced that a monumental injustice might as well realize that they will eventually have to look into the case again.

Some Dog

THE West Point (Miss.) Times-Leader tells the following story: A Booneville man advertised a possum dog for sale. Several customers came. They tried out the dog, bagged five possums in less than an hour and were interested.
 But the pup disappeared while negotiations were in progress, and a search disclosed the fact that it had repaired to the sweet potato patch, where it was busily engaged in "scratching" rams to cook with the possums. It is unnecessary to say that the owner decided to keep his dog.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER,
 WEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The significance of the new conciliatory attitude of administration Republicans in Congress is that they had a splendid chance to be as dumb as politicians ordinarily are supposed to be—and deliberately neglected the opportunity. It is quite true that no one had to be especially wary to perceive the advantages of capitulation, but the attitude of sweet reasonableness suddenly displayed by Chairman Bert Snell, of the House Rules Committee and Floor Leader Jim Watson of the Senate, had not been commonly expected.

There is also the sound thought that the supposed will of the voters, as expressed in November's elections, will be partially effective in this short session, even though the newly elected Congress does not sit for another year. For it is the realistic specter of that next Congress which now promises to persuade the Republican House machine to permit 435 representatives to vote on the Norris-Muscle Shoals bill, the lame duck amendment, the Wagner unemployment bill and other legislation supported by Republican progressives.

Mr. Hoover and other regular Republicans would be just as happy—perhaps happier—if the Seventy-second Congress never met at all. The thought of calling it into special session before its time, with its anti-administration majorities, is indescribably abhorrent. A combination of Senate insurgents and Democrats presumably could force such a session, so from that standpoint alone a willingness to allow certain legislation to come to a vote in the House might seem a small price to pay.

With the set-up as is and as it is to be, the anticipated backdown of the Longworth-Snell-Tilson triumvirate seems a highly strategic retreat from every point of view.
G. O. P. Now Has Majority In the present lame duck House, the administration Republicans have a large actual majority—about 100 seats. In the next House they will at best have a bare paper majority which will be worthless insofar as legislative control is concerned and the Senate will be even more uncontrollable than it is now.

Obviously, if there is any legislation which the administration wants to influence, now is the time rather than in the next regular or special session. For one thing, it is now able to exert persuasive pressure on the lame ducks, many of whom would appreciate appointive federal jobs. And whereas it might be able to pass or defeat measures in accordance with its desires now, that possibility will be non-existent when Congress meets.

Snell believes that a House majority favors the Norris-Muscle Shoals bill for government operation, and the same is probably true as to some of the other measures which now seem likely to be voted upon. Nevertheless, there is little to be gained by delaying such votes and there is something to be lost. There is also more chance now of exacting compromises from the other side, than there will be later.

Voters Will Forget Another point is that it will be much more difficult to override presidential vetoes in this Congress than in the next, both because of the present G. O. P. strength and the fact that the session is so short and crowded.

Then there's the political viewpoint. That next Congress will not do any real business before the beginning of 1932, a full election year. There will then be another legislative jam, complicated by campaign considerations. It will be much easier for many members to vote on controversial issues in this session, as passage of a year makes a vote so much less effective as an issue against an incumbent. Also, any sensible president who wants to veto a power or labor measure would rather not wait until the year in which he comes up for re-nomination, re-election or both.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Sid Henry Telephone 321

To happiness we raise our voice, The goal of every human,
The hope of every clan and class Add every man and woman.
The day-dreams of the unborn there,
The sweet theme of the maiden's prayer.

The strong man's one ambition,
The sacred prize of mothers sweet, The tramp of soldiers on the street Have all the self-same mission.
Life here is nothing more or less Than just a quest for happiness.
'Tis not a joy that's born of wealth;
The poor man may possess it.
'Tis not alone the prize of health; No sickness can oppress it.
'Tis not the end of mortal strife, The sunset of the day of life,
Or but the old should find it;
It is the bond which God and man,
The touch Divine in all we plan,
And so this toast to happiness,
The seed of which we all possess.

Zoology Expert Defends Much Abused Coyotes

PULLMAN, Wash.—(U.P.)—The lowly coyote, long the object of paid hunters and considered the enemy of stock raisers, has found a friend and supporter in Arthur Sviha, assistant professor of Zoology at Washington State college.

Sviha, who believes that coyotes should be preserved through a discriminate plan instead of being destroyed, declares that the animals do more good than harm.

"The coyote serves as an important remover of carrion," Sviha declared. "He feeds primarily upon which he gets by hunting and he never passes up a dead animal."

"A decrease in coyotes is resulting in an increase in jack rabbits, ground squirrels and other rodents detrimental to agriculture. A certain number of coyotes should be permitted to inhabit agricultural territory."

And then, too, the mournful howl of the coyote is a distinct drawing card for western dude ranches.

"Therefore, Be It Resolved that with the ending of the service of the Honorable Dorsey McRae as sheriff, the county loses one of its most efficient courteous and devoted officials; and that the Bar, officers of the court, and the people of Hempstead county, of one accord unite and bestow upon him the encomium of well done, good and faithful servant."

Signed: T. P. Staggs, John P. Vesey, E. F. McFaddin, Committee."

"The members of the committee, and the members of the Bar present spoke of the high service and splendid character of Mr. McRae, and the court likewise made a similar observation, and the resolutions were adopted, and ordered by the court spread on the records of the Hempstead circuit court."

DID YOU KNOW THAT? BARRY JONES has been playing for the larger league ball since he first played it. He says that fellow who can't break free actually is displaying with a "bottle". But it would be taking your life for your own hands to be so sure of your own assistants. In the recent Oregon open held a driving contest, and it was discovered the smaller, heavier ball averages about five yards better on distance.

Jones says he favors the new ball because it rewards skill rather than playing. It gives a man a chance to draw his approach, finer and makes an intentional slice easier and provides a wider variety of shots because that's up, it's easier to hit with a masher or masher-slicker.

It's hard to think that we have lost the last of Bobby Jones in professional competition. He could have won with the best of grace in 1913, if only open.

Not only would his appearance in that event help golf but it would serve as a nice ballyhoo for the movie films.

and enter. It would not be because he wants to, ballyhoo; the matter, however. Anyone who knows Jones will bet on that. I prefer to think his entry would be the response to the call of competition; that he might desire to be irresistible. But it can be said that Bobby is quite a little, little, register.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (U.P.)—Coach Amos Hargrove of the Harvard Football team believes his eleven was handicapped by the presidents' agreement under which football practice at Harvard, Yale and Princeton cannot begin before September 15.

Several early season injuries that have hampered Harvard teams in recent years may be attributed to lack of sufficient conditioning prior to major games, in Hargrove's opinion.

He believes the Crimson should begin practices a week earlier, or should play three instead of two games before meeting strong opposition.

Ben Ticknor, center-captain of this year's Harvard eleven, agrees with Hargrove that an earlier start would help the Crimson.

LONDON (U.P.)—King George's racehorses were badly out this year, only two victories being credited to the royal purple. Patricio and Fairy Story were the successful animals.

Most of King George's racehorses are home-bred at his Sandringham stud. His horses in training are in the care of W. R. Jarvis at Newmarket, who also trains for Lord Harewood, the King's son-in-law. Major Petersonnough is King George's racing manager, directing the policy of the royal horses, and supervising the Sandringham stud.

A number of youngsters from Sandringham are expected to turn the luck next year. None of His Majesty's classic candidates for next season showed any ability this year. The last royal classic winner was Scuttle, which in 1924 won the 1,000 Guineas for fillies and ran second in the Epsom Oaks.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., (U.P.)—Travis Colvin Jackson, popular captain and shortstop of the New York Giants, wintering here between baseball seasons has been dubbed by fans "mayor of the winter colony."

The "colony" consists of big league baseball players and umpires who are wintering here.

Bill Terry, better known here as "Memphis Bill," also a Giant and leading first baseman of the national league is another member. Terry and Jackson say if the Giants have a couple of pitchers they will be in the world's series next year.

At the University of Tennessee medical school here is Hub Pruett, pitcher for the Giants. A downtown department store employee, Charlie Engle, former Memphis Chick, and now utility man for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Jackson is vice-president of a local drug store company and is manager of one of its stores. Thompson Prothro, manager of the pennant winning Memphis Chicks, heads the list of minor league players living here this winter.

The winter colony has registered four umpires; Bick Campbell of the American League, and Harry "Steamboat" Johnson, Buck Campbell and Bill Brennan of the southern.

With AVERY PLUS Features

Plowing tough, sticky, waxy blackland is a problem. No ordinary plow will do it successfully. Therefore—in keeping with Avery standards and ideals—Avery designers and inventors created a plow to do the work. It is a special plow—built specifically for its work. It slips through the sticky, gummy soil slick as grease. Works in black waxy gumbo and bucksnot as cleanly as the average plow works in sandy loam.

The beam is extra long. The landside is extra long. These features promote smooth operation. The "frog" is extra heavy, stiff steel. Landside plate is cast steel, brightly polished. A removable and adjustable, chilled steel heel slide is used. Altogether you have a Double Plus implement—a better plow—a black land specialist that does better, faster, cleaner and therefore cheaper work. This is Avery Plus building—the result of Avery ideals and the Avery system of thinking and creating improvements.

Avery Plus Features Save Time and Money for You

Any Avery implement costs what good quality is worth. These Avery Plus Features—created by Avery designers, inventors and craftsmen—save both time and money. We are “headquarters” for Avery Implements. Call upon us at any time.
